Rosalyn Carter

Rosalynn Carter, born Eleanor Rosalynn Smith on August 18, 1927, in Plains, Georgia, was a prominent American writer, activist, and humanitarian. She served as the First Lady of the United States from 1977 to 1981, during her husband Jimmy Carter's presidency.

Professional Life

Rosalynn was deeply involved in public service and advocacy throughout her life. She was a leading advocate for mental health and women's rights. During her tenure as First Lady, she was politically active, attending Cabinet meetings and representing her husband in meetings with domestic and foreign leaders. After leaving the White House, she continued her advocacy work, writing several books and contributing to the Carter Center's national and international efforts. She also played a significant role in expanding Habitat for Humanity and founded the Institute for Caregivers in 1987.

Private Life

Rosalynn married Jimmy Carter in 1946, and they had four children together. She was known for her strong partnership with her husband, both personally and professionally. They worked together on various projects, including the family peanut business and Jimmy's political campaigns. Rosalynn's private life was marked by her dedication to her family and her community. She was a devoted mother and grandmother, and her family often spoke of her as a supportive and loving figure.

Rosalynn Carter passed away on November 19, 2023, at the age of 96. Her legacy as a champion for mental health and women's rights continues to inspire many.
